When was the last time you updated your resume? Have you thought about having a LinkedIn account?
Bring your resume and come hear this presentation titled...
"Hope for the best, plan for the worst..."

With huge layoffs announced on an almost daily basis, it is impossible to not have at least a little concern about your job security. If your job disappears, have you created a network that will help you find a new opportunity? Have you already put thought into what you would really like to be doing?

What kind of life do you want to live? Do you choose to live? Most of us find ourselves unconsciously following paths laid before us rather than designing a life based on what matters most to us. This program provides an opportunity for you to think about key questions to ask yourself and to discuss techniques for landing on your feet should a career change occur.

Come learn and share ideas on how to not only survive, but capitalize on an unexpected opportunity. Here's some of what will be covered:

- o Dealing with the stress of the economy: How to be a survivor
- o 4 Responses to Change: Why You Need to Know Them
- o The new Tools for networking
- o The Resume: What has changed
- o 5 Questions to ask during an Interview
